Dale,

managed to push thru an amendment to purchase your sign that was stolen / misplaced.

may have some additional $$ available. just in case, what is the cost for the Check Valve? i presume its relevance to our BMP project is to prevent back flushing of water from the harbor into the BMP?

Ray,

If you are "freeing-up" funds, the end of our outfall pipe would like a Duck-Bill Check Valve to help control back flow from pushing salt water into the BMP. This is just part of our wish list; if you want other ideas just ask.

Enjoy,
Dale

Hi Ray,
FYI
DPW would be able to install both signs.

Hi Dale,

You asked me to get a post cost from Meaghann. Her reply is below mine.

She believes the posts were 4 X 4's similar to the wayfinding signs.

If that is the case -I did a quick search. A varying lengths of 6 to 10 feet, a 4 X 4 foot , pressure treated natural wood runs anywhere from 6 to 15 dollars at Home Depot.

Azek is of course more, what I found looked like is on average $60.00 a sleeve.

If DPW cannot install the sign, I would imagine it would run a few hundred dollars to have someone like Maffei Landscape or other landscape crews to do the install. They usually charge $50/hour X at least 2 folks to do the digging unless they bring their machine--and not sure what that cost would be.

Until later,

Melissa

Good Morning Melissa

The posts are out of my wheelhouse. When I did the sign, it was from existing material and the town did the install. So I'm not really sure how much the lumber would cost.

Happy to still do the signage, but please note that my estimate was a week and a half ago, so if I were to do the job, it would push the deadline back as well.

Best, meaghann
